A fun activity to try out at home

Fantasy Festival

Imagine the very best music festival in the whole world. Now imagine that you were put in charge of planning and organising the festival. Who would you invite? What bands would you want to hear? What types of food and entertainment would you have at the campsite? Would you stick with the normal stinky portaloos, or upgrade to super fancy shower blocks? Would you add a swimming pool, a football pitch, an inflatable obstacle course, or even a spa? It's up to you to decide! Create a mind map to help get some of your ideas together.

Now that you have some ideas, let's get planning!

1. Create a band line-up – remember that everyone has different musical tastes, so try including some bands that the people around you like too (since you'd need lots of grown-ups to help run the festival, you might want to put a few bands on the line-up that you know grown-ups like)! Try drawing a poster that advertises all of the bands that will be playing at the festival.
2. Write a guest list of the VIPs (verrrry important people) you'd want to invite – since we are only pretending to create a music festival, I think you can also invite fictional characters. Would you invite Ronaldo, or Greg from Diary of a Wimpy Kid? Or would you invite the Queen? Or Thor? It's up to you. Don't forget to add your friends and family to the very important person list, or they might get grumpy! Write your ideas down so you don't forget them!
3. Now that we have your V.I.P list, have a think about what the special V.I.P area would look like. Would it have gold mugs filled with hot chocolate and marshmallows or Gordon Ramsay cooking everyone a Sunday roast? Would it have Messi running a keepy up challenge, or Ed Sheeran giving people guitar lessons?
4. Now that the VIPs are sorted, we need to think about the whole festival ground. What kind of food stalls would you want there? Pizzas, burgers, burritos or all 3? How about a sit-down restaurant or diner? We also need to think about the very important things like loos and washing facilities, that stop people becoming stinky! And don't forget an entertainment zone, in case people want to take a break from all the band stage! Would you add a Fortnite zone or that inflatable obstacle course I mentioned earlier? Would you want a magical circus, or a really chilled out quiet zone for anyone struggling with the noise? Would you want to boogie away to a silent disco, or challenge your friends to a race on the Mario kart race track? Try drawing us a map of the whole festival ground, that shows all of the areas you would want to add (don't forget to add the stage and the VIP area)!

We would love to see your ideas and suggestions, so please ask an adult to share your drawings, maps or ideas with us, either by emailing them to sophie@thepoint.org.uk, or by using the social media below. By sending us your photos, drawings or video, you are giving us permission to use them on our website and social media channels.
